"Each of his unique photographs represents not merely the one-thousandth of a second it takes for the camera to click its shutter but also the days, weeks, and months of devotion and patience it takes to build a bond of trust with a subject. The crux of his work is the moment at which the bird returns the gaze of the photographer. It is a glance not of hostility or mistrust but of recognition. The individual bird accomplishes a task still difficult for most of humanity: to recognize itself as one of many species."

Mark Dion, Parkett no. 50/51, 1997.
